Dinner and discussion with Harvard faculty

THIS TUESDAY!

Should Israel Have A Constitution?

Professor Noah Feldman

Bemis Professor of Law, Harvard Law School

Tuesday, November 5 @ 6:00pm

Harvard Hillel (52 Mt. Auburn St.)

Almost alone among mature democracies, Israel lacks a written constitution. What explains this anomaly? What does it mean for religion and state, equal rights for minorities, and other pressing questions? Does its absence challenge Israel's democratic status? Could a constitution be written or adopted? Should it?

Kosher catered dinner is provided

This series is open to Harvard students only- all students welcome!
